MCS aiming to keep students safe

‘Unfortunately, COVID is not going away’

BY BOB DEMAREE
Superintendent Dr. Jeffrey Studebaker said Wednesday that Madison Consolidated Schools will do whatever can be done to keep students safe during the COVID-19 pandemic. “Unfortunately, COVID is not going away,” Studebaker told members of the school board.

“We were excited about the new school year and were hoping COVID was in the rear view window, but it is not.” The school board’s meeting on Wednesday came just hours after MCS announced earlier in the day that Anderson Elementary School would switch to virtual learning beginning Thursday due to instances of COVID-19 there. The plan is to stay out of the building through Friday, Aug. 27 with students returning to in-person classes on Monday, Aug. 30. Studebaker said the situation at Anderson involved persons infected with COVID-19 coming into contact with others who then needed to quarantine. It involved some staff members who are parents and now need to be home with their children. He said it’s a preventative measure that he anticipates will help to decrease COVID issues when in-person classes resume Aug. 30. The lone exception to the plan is special education students, who will return to in-school classes Monday because he said that be safely done while maintaining required hours for those students. Studebaker said there has been some concern also about COVID issues at the junior high, but he’s hoping in-person classes can safely continue there, although virtual leaning remains an option to mitigate any possible rise of COVID cases that might take place. SEE MCS/PAGE A2

County may form committee to study reuse of old jail building

BY BOB DEMAREE
With completion of the new Jefferson County Sheriff’s Office and Criminal Justice Center scheduled for 2023, Jefferson County Commissioners briefly discussed at Friday’s meeting the need for developing a repurpose plan for the current Jefferson County Jail in the future. The Commissioners mentioned establishing a new committee to begin planning reuses of the current jail located on the courthouse square in downtown Madison when inmates move to the new hilltop facility. Initially, there was a committee led by Commissioner Ron Lee that was exploring the possibility of using the current jail as a substance abuse treatment center, but after it was deemed the current jail would not be suitable for that purpose, the group’s focus turned to other ways to develop a substance abuse treatment facility in Jefferson County. So with no plans being formed on how to use the old jail, Commissioner president David Bramer expressed the need for forming a group to specifically address that issue. “I wonder if we need another focus group on what to do with the current jail,” he said. One idea Bramer suggested is the possibly the build-

However, he noted there are also more possibilities to explore. “We have still got some time,” Bramer said, later adding the county still should begin planning what to do with the building. “When a building is empty and not in use, it is not good to have it just sitting there,” Commissioner Bobby Little agreed, adding it would be great that once county law enforcement is gone from the building that another entity with a use for the facility could be moving in. Lee’s group has been meeting monthly at the Jefferson County Public Safety Center, and he feels progress is being made. “We are beginning to

Hanover closer to producing own live broadcasts

BY BOB DEMAREE
Months after agreeing to purchase video equipment to record its meetings, the Town of Hanover hopes to finally be able to go live with that equipment in September. Hanover Clerk-Treasurer Keith Mefford said at Tuesday’s meeting that everything is nearly in place for the town to handle its own recordings. “My goal is it will happen by the next meeting,” Mefford said, which is slated for Tuesday, Sept. 7. He said the plan depends on completing the technological aspect of the setup and having a camera operator at meetings. To prepare for broadcasting meetings, the town has updated the area where the town council sits during meetings, and has plans to add a podium where visitors may address the council. Mefford said he plans to build the podium himself from materials left over after construction of the new platform where the council will be seated. “I think it looks great,” said council member Treva Shelton. “You did good. It could not have been any better.” Mefford said once the town begins broadcasting its meetings, the videos will be available on the Hanover town website, townofhanover.net, as well as on the town’s Facebook page. In other business: • Mefford provided an update on the Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative by the Indiana Economic Development Corporation in which regions are competing for up to $50 million in grant funds. He said he had talked with Kay Stokes, of Hanover College, about the college’s proposed project to collaborate with Ivy Tech-Madison to establish southern Indiana as a hub for veterinary medicine, bio science and agribusiness with a $5.9 million sewer project with the town of Hanover being utilized as local government matching money. Mefford noted the project ranks in the top four of 53 projects submitted to the Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority on behalf of Jefferson, Scott, Washington, Clark and Floyd

Lee noted the enactment of that law changed the direction of his group toward focusing more efforts on addressing substance abuse solutions than repurposing the old jail. The next meeting for the substance abuse solutions group will be Thursday, Sept. 9 at 4 p.m.

In other business:

- County Surveyor Mike Pittman and Building and Zoning Inspector Josh Cline reviewed making American Disabilities Act updates to county facilities. In particular, Cline discussed constructing a ramp in back of the Courthouse Annex, 315 Jefferson Street. Additionally, he recommended updating signage and painting for handicapped parking spaces, along with some other updates to improve accessibility and to keep the county in compliance with ADA regulations.

- Approved two updates to the county handbook. One change updates the maternity leave section to include paternity to also provide a father with two weeks paternity leave. Additionally, it updated a section about elected officials transitioning to full-time employment that if an elected official steps down from an elected office or become a full time employee at the end of their term, the county will observe years of service prior to the time elected with regard to vacation time, but not counting sick or personal leave.
- Highway Superintendent Bobby Phillips gave an update on the gravel road conversion program in which the county has established criteria for hard surfacing a roadway. The county has $250,000 available each year and this year the highway department is working toward hard-surfacing a gravel section of Brooksbury-Manville Road. Once that’s done, the county will look at the rankings of the road conversion program to determine which road to convert next. The road currently at the top of the conversion list is Poplar Ridge Road.

- Phillips said the highway department is currently chip sealing roads in various locations in the county, an effort that is now moving forward after the Commissioners approved purchase of a compact paving roller to replace one that was no longer operational at their previous meeting.
- Approved four change orders related to the Jefferson County Sheriff’s Office and Criminal Justice Center, which were all credits — Hussong Mechanical at $93,835, EH Construction at $113,864, C&T Design and Equipment at $7,078, and Link Electrical at $130,496. County Auditor Heather Huff said that with the jail project in progress that the change orders will likely occur at most upcoming Commissioners meeting. Bramer said the credits are due to the efforts of “our owner’s representative negotiating with the construction companies to get these savings.”

“The rest of the buildings are in good shape,” said Studebaker, noting the other elementaries, Lydia Middleton, Deputy and Rykers’ Ridge, where vaccines are not yet available to persons under 12 years old, are having isolated COVID issues. He added he is hopeful that Madison Consolidated High School, where all students are eligible to be vaccinated, will limit its cases there.

Meanwhile, Madison Consolidated Schools were already requiring masks inside buildings for all students, staff and faculty.

“We decided to go with masks even though there is controversy with masks. We will always error on the side of kids and safety. There is no winning answer,” Studebaker said.

With the pandemic predominately taking hold in the US in mid-March of 2020, this is the second consecutive year that the beginning of a school year involved dealing with COVID-19.

Studebaker said it’s different this year. Last year, when the first issues started to surface with COVID-19, Studebaker said he “felt so defeated.” But this year, he feels they now know how to react to it, and to be proactive in mitigation.

“This is what we have to do now,” he said, noting the pattern has been that whenever Jefferson County is in the “Red” metric for high community spread — as is currently the case — that more issues arise in Madison Consolidated Schools.

With the uncertainty of the impact of COVID-19 in the near future, Studebaker presented the board a policy update that will allow member participation in school board meetings through electronic means of communication if necessary.

“If we need to go virtual, we have the legal authority to do that,” said Studebaker, who said if Jefferson County remains in the COVID “Red” metric by the next board meeting on Sept. 8 that session will likely be done virtually.

Studebaker said the school board was able to meet virtually last year under the Governor’s executive orders allowing that. He said there has been much conversation over the legality of the Governor’s orders, or whether the legislature could override them. So to be sure, Studebaker said the legal advice was to have board policy in place to permit virtual means for meetings, regardless of what may is allowed otherwise.

In other business:

“These ladies would come in at 5 a.m. to prepare meals and make sure they were packaged and ready for delivery to community operating sites,” said Judy Brooks, MCS Nutrition and Wellness Coordinator. “I am so grateful for the hearts of our team. Every person on our team who worked to provide these meals has a love for and dedication to make sure our students are put first and have nutritional meals to eat while at school.”

Shooting your shot

Dear Annie: I know this awesome guy. Let's call him "Luke." We're both teens, and we see each other because our little sisters are best friends and our dads get along well. I really like Luke — a lot. He's very polite, kind and funny. My problem is that I don't know if he feels the same way about me. There are times when I could almost swear that our feelings are mutual, but then he says or does something that makes me feel unsure. I really don't know what to think. Any advice that you have is appreciated. — Confused About Feelings

Dear Confused: Shoot your shot! Ask him out. There's a very good chance he feels just as you do. And if not, he'll be flattered, and you can move on, knowing where you stand. Let us know how it goes.

Dear Annie: I enjoy reading your column every day and usually agree with your advice. However, I think you may have missed the mark with "Am I Petty," who reconnected with her ex-husband and is now dating him again. He met a woman on a dating app while they were briefly broken up for three weeks. She stated that she was afraid to broach the subject with him because he gets very upset. That statement tells me that he may have been abusive and controlling in their relationship. Between the lines, I read that this man thinks only of himself and has come back to roost with a woman that he thinks will put up with him — again. You advised her to take a step back and consider whether the relationship was right for her. I think she should take that step, turn and run — not walk — in the opposite direction. She divorced him once and is asking for more heartache if she continues to let this man manipulate her. — Know the Type

Dear Know the Type: I appreciate this insight, though I'm sorry you had occasion to gain it. It does sound as though "Am I Petty's" husband is, at the very least, somewhat emotionally manipulative and engaging in gaslighting. Readers can learn more about this practice and how to combat it by visiting <https://www.thehotline.org> and entering "gaslighting" into the site search bar.

Dear Annie: Regarding "Should I Let Go for My Own Sanity": She's in a crummy situation, to put it mildly, but maybe getting involved with some people who'd be a little more appreciative would make her feel better. Mentoring a student, reading to students, visiting with elderly people, whatever she might like — she might get a little more appreciation and feel a little better. It doesn't change the situation with her sons, but she might see that their opinions aren't the only ones in the world. Just a suggestion. — Sue M.

Dear Sue: And a very good one, at that. Thanks for writing.

Daughter spreads her wings

Dear Annie: My daughter and her father and I were always close. We talked daily, telling one another about our days. She has three children. We paid for preschool for all of them, bought their clothes and even bought a condo for them to live in while she went to law school. She is our only living child; we were in a position to help, and we were happy to do so.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

She divorced her husband, who was bleeding her financially by buying expensive new cars and going on expensive vacations. We also helped by babysitting the kids, getting meals many times and continuing with financial help.

She met someone very nice, stable and with a rising career. Her career rose, too. They are a family now, with five children and a big house to take care of.

We hear from her now once every two or three weeks, and visits are rare — maybe once every three months. We went through a very painful time from this separation, especially me. I'm all right now and have developed new friends. I wonder, though, if this type of distancing from us is something she had to do to become independent, or if she almost mistreated us. What do you think? — A Mom of a Grown Daughter

Dear Mom of a Grown Daughter: Ideally, in parenting, you raise your children to have a strong foundation; you give them good roots; and then you give them wings to fly away on their own. It sounds like you have done a great job parenting. I don't think your daughter is mistreating you; I think she is happy and enjoying her life, which should be your goal. Maybe see if you can go over and visit her and all of your many grandkids.

Sometimes, when we are having a difficult time in life, even in adulthood, it is our parents who help us out. Your daughter was going through a tough time with her ex-husband, and your support was so helpful that she was able to get back on her feet and find a good husband and a happy life. Job well done, Mom.

Dear Annie: I read the letter from "Frustrated Friend," who was struggling with how to handle a "frenemy," and my heart went out to her, as I have lived the exact same situation. You are perfectly correct in your response that this person is no friend.

I, too, never knew how to handle my frenemy because the insults were always spoken sotto voce or to someone else but always loud enough for me to hear, or, as "Frustrated Friend" says, "embarrassing" because they were said "while in the company of others."

You suggest, "Stand up for yourself the next time she insults you." I would love to get some suggestions from you on how to handle this type of individual. How does one stand up to someone who is so passive aggressive? — Been There

Dear Been There: The best way to stand up to a bully (even a passive aggressive one) is to stand up to the bully directly. Let them know very directly that you don't have time for passive aggressive games. If they continue to try to boss you around through passive aggressiveness, it might be time to pack your bags and look for a new friend.

Cheatham Family establishes scholarship

BY BOB DEMAREE
A new scholarship has been established for a Madison Consolidated High School senior based on one family's appreciation for the city and the local school corporation, it was announced at Madison School Board on Wednesday.
The children of Robert and Mildred Cheatham raised a total of $25,478.15 for the Chatham Family Scholarship in which criteria is still being developed.
Mark Cheatham described the family the members as "good, solid people who raised their families in Madison and contributed in some way to Madison being the great city that it is" and established the scholarship as a means to honor the Cheatham family while providing opportunity for a student.
The Cheathams have strong ties to Madison Cubs basketball with Gene (Class of 1942), Robert Jr. (Class of 1947), Thomas (Class of 1948), Ed "Bardo" (Class of 1950) and Larry (Class of 1963) all playing for the program. Dave Cheatham anticipated if girls basketball had existed at that time that the other siblings, Thelma Wehner, Dorothy Sands and Nancy Lee, would have also been successful in the sport for the Cubs.
In addition to the scholarship, Dave Cheatham, son of Gene Cheatham, presented a photocopied scrapbook to the school corporation that belonged to Gene Cheatham from when the Cubs made their first trip to the boys basketball final four on March 22, 1941.
The original scrapbook, now 80 years old, is well worn, so the version given to the school corporation is a photocopy done by Ron and Linda Roaks at the Jefferson County Historical Society with John Nyberg, executive director, designing a new cover.
Dave Cheatham noted that all four times that the Cubs have been to the final four a Cheatham has been on the team — Gene in 1941, Ed in 1949 and 1950 and Larry in 1962. The scrapbook includes photos and articles from The Madison Courier, along with team photos, and other remembrances. Other recognitions include Don Server and Bill Lodge, Madison's first Indiana All-Stars, along with Server being awarded the Gimbel award, which was the prestigious mental attitude award. Additionally, it shows the brass belt buckle that was the individual award for the team, tickets for the state finals that were priced at $1.25, the state finals program, and much more.

SEASON PREVIEW

Carroll with a lot to prove as '21 season kicks off

BY LAUREN HANEY

Like many high school football teams, Carroll County is coming off an irregular season last year, going 6-5 and losing in the second round of the playoffs. The Panthers have got a lot to prove this year and plan to make the most of every game.

Carroll County kicks off the season against tough competition and then rolls directly into district play fighting four tournament seeding. The Panthers' season opener last night against North Oldham was canceled due to COVID protocols and Carroll County will now open the season next week at home against Henry County.

It's going to be a tough start but head coach Justin Franklin can't wait to get started.

"We play (two) 5A teams in the next five weeks: Madison and Grant. It's going to be a tough first four games," said Franklin. "Then we go to districts. Owen's a lot better this year, Gallatin County's a lot better this year, Trimble County's got a new staff; they're excited about the program, they're gonna be better. Walton-Verona is always tough; they've brought all their skill players back. It's really going to be a tough season all around. If we keep everybody healthy we'll be competitive."

Carroll County has 12 seniors leading the team this year starting with quarterback Harrison Felts and wide receiver/running back Spencer Vaught. Felts and Vaught have played for Carroll County their entire high school careers and are expected to provide leadership and productivity in 2021.

"It's been difficult," said Vaught. "There's been moments where we've had some struggles, but overall it's been good. I like it, I like to take the team under my wing. It changes my perspective in practice but in the game I just try to keep everybody under control. We have a lot of team chemistry and we know how to play together. I feel like we've all been together for so long that the chemistry is really strong."

The Panthers are confident in their roster. They plan to work on their shortcomings and build toward the districts.

"Compete in our district, that's what we plan to do," said Felts. "I feel confident, I definitely feel like we have the best chance that we've had in the past couple years going into it. We just have to execute and do what we're supposed to do."

Although the Panthers won't be suited up on opening night, Carroll got a taste of live action with a promising effort in the preseason scrimmage against Atherton a week earlier. The night ended with Panthers on top 20-6, which Franklin credited to the attitudes of his players.

"Our guys brought a lot of juice tonight, but one day we bring juice and the next day we don't bring any juice," said Franklin. "Tonight their attitudes stayed pretty strong through the whole scrimmage which is what we've been lacking. They've got a good attitude one day and a bad attitude the next day. Tonight we had a great attitude so if we keep that good attitude, then we'll play pretty well."

Felts agreed that the team's intensity is what gave Carroll an extra edge against Atherton.

"We brought a lot of energy tonight. I think that's what gave us the advantage," said Felts. "We knocked them off the ball first and it gave us a chip for sure."

Madison takes advantage of Southwestern's ills in 4-0 boys soccer win

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Southwestern soccer limped into Thursday's game with Madison wounded and the Cubs took advantage for a 4-0 win in Hanover.

The Rebels entered the game down four starters and with only 13 available players thanks to a variety of reasons, taking away a bit of the shine from what is usually one of the most highly anticipated matchups of the season. But despite the unusual circumstances, Southwestern coach Seth Shields wasn't ready to make excuses.

"We were down four main guys, including goalkeeper, and we had to put one of our main scorers in goal because, being an athlete, we knew that he could handle it back there and he did a great job," Shields said. "But I told my guys that we played a heck of a game. We played our game. A couple of balls go here, a couple of balls go there, it could be 1-1 at halftime. I was proud of them." At the same time, Madison dominated the action throughout and Southwestern managed only three shots in the game. Still, if not for a couple of gift goals, the game would have been much closer.

The Cubs got their first goal in the 14th minute thanks to an extraordinary performance by junior Clint Hearne, who took a pass at midfield from the left side and dribbled through the Southwestern defense, crossing the field and scoring from the right side for a 1-0 lead.

Madison's second goal fell into the fluke category. Sonny Koren blasted a screamer from 20 yards out in the 23rd minute that was headed right to Rebel goalie Brandon Smith when it hit something on the ground three feet in front of Smith and bounced over the keeper's head into the goal.

Eder ties school record in Madison win over Providence

Carroll's Staley, Trimble's Stark qualify for All 'A' State

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Keara Eder put together a fantastic round and Madison's girls golf easily bested Providence 190-226 in a nine-hole match at Sunrise Golf Course on Wednesday.

Eder carded a two-under 34 at Sunrise, tying her own school record that she shares with both Karen Dennison (2000) and Whitney Eckert (2002). Eder matched that mark twice last year as a junior.

But Eder wasn't alone in stellar play. Grace Bronkella shot a strong 43, Gracie Gasaway carded a 55 and Reagan Warren had a 58 to round out Madison's scoring. Lilly Fox and Isa James each shot non-scoring 61s.

"The team played the front nine today after having played the back nine on Monday. Combined, we shot a 376 for the week, which is a little ahead of where we thought we might be at this time of year," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "Grace has come up real big and has been very steady. She has shot back-to-back 43s which is her career-low. Usually, when that happens, golfers start to go lower. I don't know if that is in the cards for Grace this year or not, but she has been a great compliment to Keara. She can play with just about anyone."

"I saw some very good things from everybody today. This group has been really good at being coachable and taking advice. They're pretty fun to be around."

Claire Cassis led Providence with a 51, Savanna Gohmann and Abby Shavers each had 58 and Kadie O'Bannon had a 59.

Madison competes in the Floyd Central Invitational today and heads to Jac-Cen-Del along with Shawe and Southwestern on Monday.

STARK, STALEY ADVANCE TO STATE

Trimble County's Maddi Stark and Carroll County's Luke Staley each qualified for the All "A" Classic Golf State Finals with medalist finishes at the Eighth Region Tournament at Fairway Golf Course on Thursday in Wheatley.

Staley shot an 81 and was the individual runner-up in the boys tournament to punch his ticket to the state finals while Stark carded a 91 to place sixth overall behind the five girls from winning team Owen County and advance to her third consecutive state finals.

As a team, Carroll County was also second overall with a 362 behind winner Owen County's 328. Only the top team and the top two scorers on non-qualifying teams advance to the state finals.

Connor Mefford shot an 88 for Carroll County, Austin Hicks had a 96, Jaxon Hewitt carded a 97 and Brannon Batta-glia had a 99.

Trimble's girls placed second as only Owen and Trimble fielded full teams while the Raider boys were fifth out of six teams with Daulton Penick leading the way with a 95.

The State Finals will be held Sept. 11-12 in Richmond.

WELLS LEADS SHAWE TO WIN

Shawe girls golf posted a win in a three-way meet at Milan on Thursday.

The Hilltoppers shot a 195 to best host Milan with a 221 and South Dearborn with a 224.

Sophomore Kira Wells led the way for Shawe with a 45 that was good for low-medalist. Yolett Perez and Gia Craig each had 49 and Bailey Kilgore carded a 52.

"I'm pleased anytime we shoot under 200 as a team — especially against a conference opponent — but I still think the girls can go lower," Shawe coach David Hertz said. "They all left some strokes out there

Switzerland County's Kayley Jones (left) celebrates with teammate Raylinn Kappes after scoring the Pacers' second goal in a 4-0 win over Madison on Wednesday.

Swiss girls roll over Madison, 4-0

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Switzerland County dominated the action from beginning to end and rolled to a 4-0 win over Madison in girls soccer Wednesday at Madison.

The Pacers held an overwhelming 30-5 advantage in shots and pushed the action from the opening kick. That intensity resulted in seven offsides calls in the game's first 20 minutes, but also staked Switzerland to an early lead.

The Pacers scored what proved to be the winning goal in the first minute of the match when senior Raylinn Kappes blew past the Madison defense down the right side of the field and put a perfect cross pass to sophomore Halle Archer who was there to put the ball in the net for a quick 1-0 lead.

Kayley Jones pushed the Pacers ahead 2-0 when she launched a shot from outside of the box in the 11th minute.

Switzerland didn't score again until the second half when Kappes got on the board with a goal in the 48th minute on an assist by Mackenzie Taylor. Taylor then scored in the 75th minute for the final margin.

Overall, Switzerland held a 15-1 advantage in shots on goal and attempted nine corner kicks to just one by Madison. Alaina Kelley had 10 saves in goal for Madison while Switzerland keeper Allena Weaver did not have to post a save.

On Thursday, Switzerland rolled through South Ripley 7-0. Kappes had three goals, Archer scored two, Taylor had a goal and two assists and Jones scored a goal.

Switzerland, now 2-0-1 overall and 1-0-1 Ohio River Valley Conference, hosts Carroll County on Monday. Madison, now 1-1, travels to Silver Creek today and hosts South Ripley on Monday.

PACERS' HINES MEDALIST AT BELTERRA

Switzerland County's Hailey Hines picked up her second low-medalist of the week and the Pacers scored a team win in a three-way match at Belterra Golf Course on Wednesday.

Hines shot a 68 to share medalist honors. As a team, Switzerland beat Milan 231-240 while Southwestern was unable to field a complete team.

Lily Williams had a 56 for the Pacers, Brooklyn Flanders had a 62 and Kenna Perkins had a 65.

Hannah Sampson led Southwestern with a 58, Ximena Vilchis Harrizon had a 60 and Kayla Boscia had a 72.

"We played well tonight despite Belterra being a more challenging course,"

Southwestern coach Matt Johnson said. "Everyone succeeded at striking multiple fairways and stayed focused on maintaining a strong putting game."

On Thursday, Southwestern faced off against four other schools at Westwood Golf Course in Scottsburg. Sampson fired a 61 to lead the Rebels while Vilchis-Harrizon had a 65 and Boscia a 69.

"Tonight's scores did not end up as we had planned however, there were many positives to take away from tonight," Johnson said. "Despite being incredibly tired from playing three matches this week with a very long Belterra course last night, the girls did a good job staying mentally tough and not letting a bad hole affect them on the next one."

Scottsburg won the match with a 205 and Paoli had a 246. Neither Clarks-ville nor New Washington fielded full teams.

Scottsburg's Molly McGannon was the low-medalist with a 43.

Southwestern competes at Jac-Cen-Del with Madison and Shawe on Monday. Switzerland's next meet is on Wednesday at home against South Dearborn and South Ripley.

Votto blasts 3-run homer, Reds rebound to beat Marlins, 6-1

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
CINCINNATI — Joey Votto slammed a three-run homer, Luis Castillo pitched seven innings of one-run ball and the Cincinnati Reds beat the Miami Marlins 6-1 on Thursday night.

Votto's 428-foot shot into the seats in right-center — his team-leading 27th homer — highlighted the Reds' four-run fourth after Miami right-hander Nick Neidert had faced the minimum in the first three innings.

"Joey Votto, every night he does something cool," said Reds second baseman Jonathan India, who had two hits, an RBI and scored on the homer. "It's so fun to watch, and he's been a leader all year for us. When Joey goes, we go."

Castillo (7-12), averaging 97 mph on his four-seam fastball and sinker, allowed eight hits and struck out seven. Michael Lorenzen retired the Marlins in order in the eighth, and Tony Santillan did the same in ninth.

"I felt spectacular today, commanding the zone and commanding all my pitches as well," Castillo said.

Kyle Farmer also hit a run-scoring double for the Reds, who rebounded after dropping two in a row and the series to the depleted Chicago Cubs.

Cincinnati moved within a game of the San Diego Padres for the second NL wild-card slot.

"They're all going to be really important the rest of the way," Reds manager David Bell said. "I was just really happy with just our whole day today."

MOVING ON UP

The 37-year-old Votto is moving up the Reds' all-time lists, and he's surrounded by Hall of Fame company. He's now tied with Johnny Bench with 1,091 runs scored, behind only Pete Rose (1,741) and Barry Larkin (1,329). His 322 homers trail only Bench (389) and Frank Robinson (324). Votto has homered 15 times since the All-Star break.

TRAINERS ROOM

Reds: OF Jessie Winker (intercostal strain) may be out longer than initially expected. The 28-year-old All-Star went on the 10-day injured list on Monday after he aggravated a strain of the muscles in the rib cage the previous day. ... The Reds reversed OF Nick Senzel's option and placed him back on the injured list. He has fluid on his surgically repaired left knee and will go to the Arizona facility for rehab. There is no timetable for his return.

Cubs 7, Reds 1 (Wednesday) — Michael Hermosillo homered for the first time since 2018, Ian Happ and Sergio Alcántara also went deep, and the depleted Chicago Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-1 on Wednesday, taking two of three from their play-off-contending NL Central rivals.

Frank Schwindel and Rafael Ortega also drove in runs for the Cubs, who ended a 12-game skid a day earlier. Schwindel, Chicago's regular first baseman since Anthony Rizzo was dealt to the Yankees at the deadline, had six hits in the series and is batting .329.

Reds starter Tyler Mahle (10-4) gave up five runs and eight hits in five innings. Jeff Hoffman came on in the sixth and promptly surrendered Alcántara's homer.

After exploding for 14 runs in the series opener Monday night, Cincinnati managed a single run in each of the last two games. Tyler Naquin homered in the second, the only time Cincinnati got a runner past second base. The top five Reds hitters combined to go 1-for-19.

Madison netters beat Milan for 1st win

BY THE COURIER STAFF
Madison boys tennis picked up its first win of the season with a 4-1 victory at Milan on Thursday.

In doubles, Matthew Burkhardt and Bodie Harsin defeated Adam Volz and Jake McGuire 7-6 (7-3), 6-3 at No. 1 and Landon True and Abe Reetz beat Cayden Green and Aiden McFarland 6-2, 6-0 at No. 2.

On Wednesday, Madison dropped a 4-1 loss at Henryville.

Cammack picked up a 6-2, 6-0 win over Bradley Eickholtz at No. 3 singles. Miller lost 6-0, 6-0 to Zidon Coats at No. 1 singles while Fink fell 6-3, 6-3 to Elias Kleinert at said with a wry smile. "We're dealing with it."

Shields moved Smith out of goal at halftime to return to his natural position at midfield and the Rebels showed life in the second half but to no avail. Henry Grote scored his third goal of the season in the 57th minute on an assist from Kyle Roney and Harrison Hall capped the scoring in the 77th minute on a penalty kick.

Madison has now scored 10 goals in two games while allowing only one. Madison coach Kyle Bipes admits that the Cubs haven't gotten into the meat of their schedule, but he's pleased with the team's early-season success.

"It's always good to score, especially after last year where we may have scored 10 goals all season," said Bipes. "The boys are having fun. We settled in a little bit in the first half and got a little lazy and started playing kickball. But other than that, we played well. Our midfield kept their shape most of the game and that's what happens when you keep your shape, you dominate the middle of the field. And I think that was the key."

Two nights after hammering out 51 shots but only 19 on goal, Madison had fewer attempts but a better percentage, taking 21 shots with 10 on goal. For the second-straight game, goalie Drew Forner did not have opportunity to record a save while Smith had two for the Rebels and Matt Mingione had four.

Madison, now 2-0, wraps up its first week of the season with a tough early-season test when the Cubs head to Silver Creek today. Madison then hosts Scottsburg, another sectional opponent, on Tuesday.

Southwestern, now 1-1, opens Ohio River Valley Conference play with three games next week, starting with a home contest against South Ripley on Monday. The Rebels then travel to Milan on Wednesday.

Louisville seeks return to respectability after 2020 falloff

BY GARY B. GRAVES
ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Louisville must bounce back from a losing finish for the second time in three seasons.

Scott Satterfield seeks a repeat of the 2019 resolve that turned the program around and perhaps take the team a step further. With seven starters back on each side of the ball, the third-year Cardinals coach believes they can climb back to respectability.

“A lot of positives going into this year,” Satterfield said at last month’s Atlantic Coast Conference media session. “Defense is continuing to get better. Offensively, guys have a great grasp of what we’re doing on. We have a lot of talented players that are going to be able to play.

“I’m excited about what we’re able to accomplish this year and what we’ll be able to play in this league.”

Louisville surprisingly took a step back record-wise last fall, finishing 4-7 in a 10-game ACC docket following an eight-win turnaround season and bowl victory in 2019. The Cardinals’ high-powered offense provided a bright spot as it continued to thrive behind a nucleus featuring mobile quarterback Malik Cunningham, running back Javian Hawkins and receivers Tutu Atwell and Dez Fitzpatrick — who combined for 2,280 yards and 17 touchdowns. Atwell and Fitzpatrick were second- and fourth-round NFL draft selections respectively while Hawkins signed as a free agent with the Atlanta Falcons.

But for all of those yards and points, Louisville did itself in at times by allowing sacks and coughing up the ball, the latter of which left them ranked 119th nationally in turnover margin at minus-12. A midseason COVID-19 outbreak that depleted the defense only deepened the Cardinals’ struggles.

Satterfield will take over the play calling with Cunningham running the offense, with both hoping to reduce or erase the turnovers that cost the Cardinals several close games last season. A Louisville defense that continued to make strides under Bryan Brown aims to become stingier and opportunistic.

More than anything, the Cardinals appear determined to put 2020 behind them and resemble the squad that surprised the league not long ago.

“We knew who was coming back and we knew what we wanted to do when we came back,” senior linebacker C.J. Avery said last week. “We’re on a mission to prove ourselves right.”

Some other things to watch as Louisville tries to rebound from a losing season:

TEAM UNITY

Satterfield encountered controversy last fall for talking with South Carolina about the then-vacant head coach opening. Satterfield eventually apologized to the fan base in an open letter and reiterated his commitment to the program that players took to heart.

“We know where he stands,” offensive lineman Renato Brown said. “We’d been told since the first day he got here that he wants to be a Cardinal, and we believe and trust him.”

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Cunningham is back after passing for 2,615 of his 3,224 offensive yards and 20 of his 27 touchdowns last season. The junior has some potential new targets in tight end Marshon Ford and receiver Braden Smith, sophomores who each had at least 300 yards receiving in 2020. But Cunningham’s focus is ball protection after he threw 12 interceptions and fumbled several times.

Boilermakers pin turnaround hopes on revamped defense

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue coach Jeff Brohm built his reputation as an offensive innovator.

This season, he is trying to come up with the perfect defense.

After allowing nearly 30 points per game last season and finishing with a second straight losing record, Brohm made another defensive overhaul, one he hopes creates a turnaround.

“I wanted to get on the defensive side of the ball myself quite a bit more,” he said. “We want a lot of voices in the (defensive) room giving their opinion, giving their input and putting the best plan together for our guys to go out there and make plays.”

The transformation began with a revamped coaching staff.

Defensive coordinator Bob Diaco was fired after one season and Brohm hired three co-coordinators — play-calling linebackers coach Brad Lambert, defensive line coach Mark Hagen and secondary coach Ron English.

Those three brought in a new philosophy that’s already been evident at practice.

“They’re being aggressive,” co-offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach Brian Brohm said.

“They’re trying to challenge footballs, they’re trying to challenge routes and not make it easy for the quarterback to get completions.”

Staying healthy would help, too.

All-conference defensive end George Karlaftis led the Boilermakers with two sacks last season but finished with only four tackles because he missed the final three games with COVID-19 and a leg injury. Starting linebacker Semisi Fakasiieki was carted off the field last week with an undisclosed injury.

While Fakasiieki’s status remains unclear, Karlaftis is back along with his brother, Yanni, a highly-touted freshman linebacker.

Add some other key cogs such as defensive end DaMarcus Mitchell, cornerback Cory Trice and hard-hitting safeties Marvin Grant and Cam Allen, and the Boilermakers just might have a quick fix.

“We want to put the best package we can together but be aggressive in our approach, really play offensive offense on the defensive side this year,” Jeff Brohm said. “As much as we can, we want to allow our guys to take chances and make plays and have fun doing it.”

BELL TOWER

David Bell has been one of the Big Ten’s best receivers the last two seasons. With Rondale Moore in the NFL, Bell won’t have to share the spotlight or the targets, though he might get the full attention of opposing defenses.

Key to Purdue’s success might be finding a complimentary player for the 6-foot-2, 205-pound star.

6 Kentucky football players charged with burglary

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Six University of Kentucky football players have been charged with first-degree burglary, with one also accused of first degree wanton endangerment, following the investigation of an incident last March at a private party.

The Lexington Police Department said in a release Thursday that offensive lineman Reuben Adams, running back Robert McClain, defensive back Andru Phillips, receiver Earnest Sanders IV, safety Devito Tisdale and defensive back Joel Williams were charged with first-degree burglary. Tisdale also was charged with wanton endangerment for allegedly pointing a gun at one of the victims.

The players face arraignment Friday in Fayette County District Court.

Wildcats coach Mark Stoops said in a statement that he was aware of the current situation and that the program had been aware of the matter since March. The program withheld players from team activities while a student conduct review was held and returned to activity in June based on the outcome.

“We are evaluating the current situation as we receive more information,” Stoops added.

The release stated that on March 6 three individuals entered a private party uninvited at a residence and were asked to leave. They became upset and threatened to return, the release added, and came back a short time later with additional individuals.

They forced their way inside and one suspect was observed pointing a firearm at a victim, the release stated.

Kentucky’s athletic department said in a statement that: “The institution and athletics department take these matters very seriously. We are closely evaluating this issue before determining next steps.”

All six players were part of the 2020 recruiting class with McClain, Tisdale and Williams seeing action in many of Kentucky’s games last fall.

McClain rushed 16 times for 62 yards in 11 contests. Tisdale had 20 tackles and nine assists in 10 games, while Williams had three stops in nine contests.

Why Your Spend Down Retirement Phase Requires Planning

“The late ’50s to early ’60s is the perfect time to increase your savings, build out your stake in safe money products, and re-evaluate your portfolio.” Stephen Dybwad

Layin’ It on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

Many investors, especially those within ten years of retirement, look for guidance as they near the spend-down stages of their lives. Conventional financial advisors tend to focus on wealth accumulation rather than spend-down. While they may be fantastic at helping pre-retirees accumulate sizeable nest eggs, these planners often lack the specialized skills and training necessary to help seniors design sensible withdrawal strategies.

Americans hurtling toward retirement worry about their plans and whether they’ll have enough money to last them for twenty or thirty years after they stop getting paychecks. Those near retirement age are also concerned about knowing exactly how much they can remove from their savings each year without putting themselves at risk. In an era when yields have plummeted, and inflation is high, portfolio structure is not very intuitive. It’s challenging to formulate a plan to deliver the money necessary for you to have a stress-free, peaceful retirement. How can you prepare for the retirement spending period of your life?

Although it can be difficult to estimate your future needs accurately, it is still possible to formulate a plan that will deliver the money necessary for you to have a stress-free, peaceful retirement. Some steps you can take to fund that plan include:

Finding ways to earn more money while still employed. Investing in yourself while still employed can increase your earnings power. You don’t have to spend a ton of money to do so, either. You can keep up with the latest technology, volunteer for cross-training, or learn new skills. Not only could this position you for a promotion and a higher salary, but it might also keep you from getting downsized or laid off.

Another idea worth considering is getting a side job or gig to bring in extra money you can use to beef up your retirement accounts.

Plan your Social Security strategy long before you get a reminder from the government. Staying in your current position longer has many positive benefits, especially if you like or can tolerate where you are. For one thing, you can delay applying for Social Security benefits. Waiting to draw your Social Security payments enlarges your benefits when you eventually do file. Choosing the right age to begin Social Security benefits is one of the most critical planning decisions you will ever make.

Review your insurance needs.

Shortly before retiring, it’s wise to do an insurance review. You will see which personal liability, property and casualty, and health insurance coverages need to be beefed up, which can be reduced or eliminated. You’ll be surprised at how much money you could save by making tweaks to your insurance. Five to seven years before leaving your job is an ideal time to look at potential long-term care (LTC) insurance needs, as premiums for LTC normally become prohibitively expensive by the time you are 60.

Review your portfolio and look for gaps.

Typically, financial advisors apply conventional wisdom when advising clients how best to spend their assets in retirement. However, recommendations such as drawing down your assets in sequential order, then accessing tax-deferred accounts, and finally spending tax-exempt assets, may not be effective for everyone. It’s prudent to have your portfolio reviewed by one or more experts who are not your primary financial planners.

The Bottom Line: The spend-down phase of your financial life comes with a unique set of challenges and potential risks. For this reason, the conventional planning model you used to save your nest egg will not serve you well once you no longer get a paycheck. Advanced and thorough income and retirement planning will help you discover the best ways to maintain your lifestyle once you no longer work.

Age, health, death and just prudent thinking often prompt the need to examine financial assets and property ownership.

How to best use and distribute those resources to accommodate and protect the future, as well as reflect personal wishes, is extremely important. Too often, decisions come too late or create problems because they were based on hearsay or misconceptions, not law.
